

Production Lookbook

VERSION 1.0

NAVIGATION Use ← → keys or click arrows on screen

COMMENTING Press C, click to add

Wait, wtf even is a Production Lookbook?

INTRO

How To Prepare

DESCRIPTION

While the concept changes subtly once we get into scripting writing, the scripts themselves are the locked blueprints we're all working off of. For that reason, it is essential that you read the scripts before continuing on.

LINKS

Concept Deck

Script Book

INTRO

What To Expect

DESCRIPTION

This deck shows the production vision so everyone is fully aligned.

Please, flag any concerns or let us know if you'd like anything expanded or clarified.

INCLUDED

Tone & Vibe
Set Design
Props
Wardrobe

Camera & Pacing
Color & Lighting
Sound
VFX

First, let's talk about the vibe that will be our filter for everything else.

OVERALL DIRECTION

Tone & Vibe

DESCRIPTION

A fake “Recruiter Recovery Center” treats the symptoms of broken recruiting systems instead of fixing them. Staff calmly guide absurd rituals while quietly protecting the problem; because the solution (Loxo) would make the entire operation unnecessary.

Inspired by:

- Happy Gilmore (NSFW)
- SNL: 1-800-Flowers
- Community: Trampoline

KEYWORDS

Deadpan Humor
Calm Delivery
Corporate Satire

Absurd Rituals
Hidden Solution
Systemic Dysfunction

Moodboard

OVERALL DIRECTION

Now, we'll zoom out and
step into the wild world
our characters inhabit.

ART DIRECTION

Set Design

DESCRIPTION

The set presents as a calm, well-maintained Zen garden — green, floral, and visually appealing from a distance. Up close, it reveals itself as artificial and slightly off: fake hedges, outdated lawn furniture, and staged elements that don't fully hold up.

The environment mirrors the idea of treating symptoms; everything looks “better,” but nothing is actually fixed.

KEYWORDS

Zen Garden
Floral Hedges
Lawn Furniture

Sandbox
Bird Bath
Lush Green

ART DIRECTION

Props

DESCRIPTION

Props help elevate the visual comedy by reinforcing the main message in the script. Nothing in this recruitment company is working.

From Bob's laptop being replaced with an old keyboard, to Jill's rake being replaced with a miniature version, to the fake plant Jerry converses with, nothing at RRC actually benefits or helps our burned out recruiters.

KEY ITEMS

- Old Wheelchair
- Sandbox Tools
- Computer Keyboard
- Laptop with Loxo sticker

Ok, so we've got the house and the furnishings. Now
let's meet the roommates.

CHARACTER DIRECTION

Alex – A

PERSONALITY

Part clinical authority, part self-help operator. Speaks with calm, practiced reassurance, but it's theater. They're selling comfort, not solutions. Highly protective of her "business model," and when it's threatened, the composure cracks and the control turns sharp.

LOOK

Late 50s to early 60s. Clean, clinical presentation. A "trustworthy expert" at a glance. Everything feels intentional but slightly off: generic branding, nothing credentialed. More wellness clinic than real medicine. Looks like someone who wants to be taken seriously, but lacks any substance.

VIBE

Reassuring

Performative

Defensive

CHARACTER DIRECTION

Alex – B

PERSONALITY

Part clinical authority, part self-help operator. Speaks with calm, practiced reassurance, but it's theater. They're selling comfort, not solutions. Highly protective of her "business model," and when it's threatened, the composure cracks and the control turns sharp.

LOOK

Late 50s to early 60s. Clean, clinical presentation. A "trustworthy expert" at a glance. Everything feels intentional but slightly off: generic branding, nothing credentialed. More wellness clinic than real medicine. Looks like someone who wants to be taken seriously, but lacks any substance.

VIBE

Reassuring

Performative

Defensive

Bob

Jill

Jerry

Staff

PA

What about that extra polish that makes it even more unforgettable?

CAMERA

The camera should feel like it's filming a daytime TV commercial. Shot all from the front, with minimal inserts and cutaways for humor moments.

Using minimal pan and tilt movement we'll give that "trying to be luxury" vibe while not letting it take away from the message or the humor.

LIGHTING

The lighting should feel bright, with soft blooming highlights from natural daytime sunlight hitting the greenery in the background, while maintaining a soft, even look on the talent to avoid harsh shadows and maintain a clean, polished feel.

LENSING

Natural focal range. Nothing overly long. It should feel like we're standing in the space with them. Faces look normal and with a soft, bright feel. Using softening filters in front of the lens for blooming the highlights

FRAMING

Simple, involved in the scene framing. Mostly medium and medium-wide shots with the occasional push-in for reactions or punchlines. The camera just watches.

PACING

Pacing has a straightforward rhythm, using motivated cuts on action and dialogue. Maintain a balanced pace, tight enough to stay engaging, but with enough breathing to let jokes and humor land.

COLOR

The color is vibrant and overly saturated, trying to make the scam feel better than reality. The skin tones stay natural, healthy, and just warm enough.

Contrast stays soft and clean. Never moody or film-dark.

SOUND

Light, overly pleasant music sits under everything — something soft, spa-like, and slightly generic. Birds chirp, water trickles, and the environment feels calm, curated, and “healing.”

The mix should feel a touch too perfect — like a wellness commercial.

VFX

Minimal. No stylization or noticeable effects. Any work is purely supportive — light clean-up, subtle set extensions, or environmental enhancements (adding flowers, smoothing backgrounds, etc.)

We hope you're excited, cuz
this is gonna be a f*ck ton of fun. For everyone!

Thanks. :)